The Participants to the IAS Autumn Archival School 2010

Greetings of the new President of the Assembly of the IIAS Mauro Tosti Croce

The comparison and international cooperation are an unavoidable moment for a professional growth and an essential point of reference for all those working in the field of archival disciplines.

With this belief that I am going to take over the colleagues Antonio Dentoni Litta and Aldo Sparti, in the capacity of President of the Conference of Official members of the IIAS, vested by the Italian General Directorate. It 'a great honor for me carrying on the work undertaken by my illustrious predecessors, thanks to which the Institute has earned a recognized international prestige.

I hope I will be up to the task, and make my contribution to what has been achieved, thanks to the commitment of all stakeholders, from 2005 onwards, when, as is well known, the headquarters of the Institute moved to the State Archives of Trieste. The budget, much more than positive, is a source of great satisfaction for the Italian Archival Administration: the international participation in the conference is in fact growing, the International Autumn Archival School has gradually become more and more prestigious and reliable, the work made for the online Multilingual Archival Dictionary, now adding new languages, far beyond those normally present in such tools, continues with undiminished fervor.

It is therefore not easy continuing on this demanding road, but it maybe can be helpful to me the fact that, as Director of the Studies and Research Service of the Directorate-General for Archives, I have been responsible since a long time of the coordination of the Thematic Portals, tools fulfilling the same disseminating and training function as the IIAS. Promoted by the archival Administration, they aim to allow a general public access to a very rich documentary heritage, but nonetheless still almost unknown, consisting of a plurality of different sources related to a specific theme. Portals are the best way to give visibility to the work of archival institutions, and, over going a restricted circle of scholars, giving an impressive teaching material, able to explain, with the help of a wide range of digital objects, including films, photographs, images, audio, the relevance and the versatility of the source of information.

But in order to continue in the wake of a common growing I specially trust on the active collaboration of director Peter Pavel Klasinc, the true cornerstone of the Institute, on the co-workers of the State of Trieste, who generously give themselves to have the entire organization running smoothly, on the CEI, which has never failed to lend his invaluable support, and on all the speakers and teachers that enrich the scientific meetings, sharing their knowledge and experience in the field.

A special thank must however given to Grazia Tatò, former director of the State Archives of Trieste who, although now retired from this July, has generously agreed to go on acting as the organizational engine of IIAS. A choice that fills me with joy because it is universally known her extraordinary commitment and efforts that for many years she gave with dedication and uncommon management skills in the development of the Institute, and who was able to ensure, despite the meager available economic resources, the appreciation of the international archival community.

The collaboration with people at that level, with not only a very solid professional skills, but also great human qualities, leads me to say with trusting optimism that the IIAS will go on progressing in its activities, acting more and more as a privileged place for food of thought and sharing of experiences, able to respond, beyond every self-referential logic, to the great future challenges which we all are called to face in the near future.
